WOMEN OF RENOWN.

An Interesting Guest.

Queen Kapiolani,
WIFE OF THE KING OF HAWAII.

Washington has outdone itself in the way of honors to the first Queen who has ever visited the capital city. King Kalakaua's worthy wife has never before visited this country, with the principal cities of which she will be more or less acquainted before she sails for England. Her object in leaving her far away home in the Pacific is to pay her respects to Queen Victoria, who, this year, will complete fifty years of rule.

Wherever she is known Kapiolani creates an excellent impression. She is an educated, amiable and Christian woman. At home in the tiny kingdom of Hawaii, she is loved for her kindly words and her liberal beneficence. The gentle and sympathetic expression of her countenance is the just index to her admirable character.

She is the principal figure in a traveling party which includes several Hawaiian nobles, among them the Princess Lydia Kanakaha Liliuokalani and her English husband. The well-informed reader needs not to be told that these distinguished visitors do not find themselves very strange in American surroundings. At home in Hawaii they are in the enjoyment of an advanced condition of civilization.

The Queen will be fifty-three years old next December. She is well-preserved, stout and healthy, and looks much younger. Not blessed with children of her own she devotes much of her time and financial means to make as happy as they can be made, those unfortunate girls of Hawaii who are afflicted with leprosy. Their best friend, she it was who procured for them from the Government the building and endowment of the Kapiolani Home for Leprosy girls. With the narration of her good deeds the most that can be said of the good Queen is said.

Monkeys' Susceptibility to Tears.
If monkeys are susceptible of laughter and of manifesting delight, they are also capable of showing sorrow and weeping. Humboldt says the samir of Peru are extremely sensitive, and that at the least cause of chagrin their eyes fill with tears. It has been asserted, on the other hand, that savages are incapable of weeping. This assertion, according to Houzeau, is contradicted by numerous observations. Hottentots have been seen to weep, as well as the American Indians and the natives of Tahiti. However, the susceptibility to tears seems to diminish, pari passu, with sociality and sensibility in the human family, per contra, real tears have been observed among dogs, deer and gazelles. Here another supposed characteristic of man disappears.—Henry Howard in Cosmopolitan.

Experiment Concerning Digestion.
A Dr. Chudnowski recently experimented on twelve Russian soldiers with a view to discovering the effect of cold applications to the epigastrium on the rapidity of digestion. Each soldier was regarded as healthy; his epigastrium was properly refrigerated and the exciting contest began. Unfortunately for lovers of the weed, the competitors were divided into smokers and non-smokers. The rival teams digested their very hardest, but the non-smokers outdistanced the others by the space of one hour.—New York Sun.

Stuart, the Portrait Painter.
Gilbert Stuart had long been a fashionable artist in London, when he determined to return to his native land that he might paint the portrait of the one man he admired, George Washington. In England he had hobnobbed with princes and dukes, but when he entered the room where Washington was waiting to give him a sitting he was embarrassed.
"It was the first and only time," said he, "that I ever felt awe in the presence of a fellow-man."—Youth's Companion.

DRAMATIC AND LYRIC.

Couldock's Grand Testimonial Benefit.

STORM BEATEN NEXT WEEK

A Memorable Occasion—The Amateurs Once More—Bernhardt—Randall.

The Couldock Benefit.

C. W. Couldock.

His fiftieth anniversary on the stage! Think of it. Half a century.

Half a century devoted to the arduous task of being somebody else. It makes one wince to think of it.

What must it be to appear and appear, through a long period of years, whether the heart is elated with happiness or depressed with sorrow; to be expected to be the same, whether marriage has filled the home with gladness or death has robbed it of its chief joy. Yes, truly, an actor's life is a hard one.

And yesterday, at the Star Theatre, C. W. Couldock celebrated his fiftieth anniversary. Well might any man in any profession feel both proud and happy, find himself surrounded upon such a memorable occasion by the first men in his calling, assembled for the purpose of honoring the man by their presence. In the short and touching speech Mr. Couldock made to the audience, that fairly packed the house, he said in substance:

"I have never kept programmes, but I shall keep to-day's, which marks the red letter day of my life. All the artists, those who appear to-day and those who would have if it had been possible to arrange a programme, have said they would be amply repaid if they have made me happy." The old gentleman's voice trembled as he said, with touching emphasis, "They have."

There was something singularly impressive in this old favorite's simple words. After half a century of hard work he felt happy because the public demonstrated its appreciation and his brother artists showed their affection for him by their presence and voluntary labor.

THE PROGRAMME.

It was truly a benefit. It is said that the proceeds of the sale of tickets amounted to $5,000. It was, therefore, really a benefit to Mr. Couldock and to the audience, for seldom have the latter seen so many conspicuous actors upon a stage during a single performance.

Mr. Edwin Booth appeared in the third act of "Hamlet." Miss Emma Vaders as Ophelia, Mr. Carl Abrecht as Polonius, Mr. John T. Malone as the King, Mrs. Augusta Foster as the Queen, Mr. Charles Hanford as Horatio, Mr. H. C. Barton as Rosencrantz and Mr. Edwin Royle as Guildenstern. The appearance of Mr. Edwin Booth was hailed with shouts, calls and great applause. Comment as to the acting is unnecessary.

The screen scene from "School for Scandal" was presented by the following delightful cast: Lady Teazle, Miss Fanny Davenport; Sir Peter Teazle, Mr. John Gilbert; Charles Surface, Mr. E. B. Mantell, and Joseph Surface, Mr. J. H. B. rnes. The popular favorites were applauded to the echo, particularly Mr. Gilbert, who was for a long time prevented by the applause from delivering his opening lines.

Mr. Couldock then appeared and recited "Trowbridge's Vagabonds." He was heartily and warmly applauded. The quartet scene from "Julius Caesar" was then given by Mr. Lawrence Barrett as Cassius and Mr. John T. Malone as Brutus, assisted by several able artists.

This was followed by the third act of "Rivals," with Mrs. John Drew as Mrs. Malaprop, Mr. Joseph Jefferson as Bob Acres, Mr. James O'Neill as Sir Lucius O'Trigger, Mr. Kyle Bellow as Captain Absolute, Miss Annie Robe as Lydia Languish, and Mr. G. W. Denham as David. As each actor appeared there was a storm of applause.

The theatre was donated by Mr. Theodor Moss.

The audience contained the best known members of the profession and managers, men about town, lawyers, business men, and a large number of ladies.—N. Y. Herald, 11th.

The Amateurs' Next Appearance.

Buchanan's drama of "Storm Beaten," which has been "off," "on," "off," then "on" again with the amateurs for the past six or eight months is finally to have a presentation on the afternoon and evening of Decoration Day—the 30th. Every one who has read Buchanan's celebrated novel of "God and the Man" will be acquainted with something of the plot of Storm Beaten, which is the novel rendered into stage shape by the author. It first had a London presentation about three years ago; it was then purchased by Shook & Collier for the Union Square Theatre, New York, where it ran the greater part of one winter, and has several times since been revived with equal success. Mr. Kee Rankin, Effie Ellsler, Louis Morrison, Maude Harrison, J. H. Stoddard and Mrs. Phillips have become most closely identified with the leading parts, which in the amateur presentation will be assumed by Mr. Wells, Edith Clawson, Mr. Spencer, Birdie Cummings, Mr. Young and Lottie Claridge; other characters will be filled with such well known people as Mr. Taylor, Mr. Evans (who has a Welsh part after the style in which he once made so pronounced a hit in Henry V.), Fred Clawson, Ivy Clawson, Mr. Crouch, Mr. Owen, etc. The story, which treats largely of the casting away of two mortal enemies upon the same desolate island in the Arctic Ocean, affords a magnificent chance for scenic display, and the Club have engaged the artist, Alfred Lambourne, to do some special painting for the piece. The costumes, of the early part of the present century, will all be new, and of the tasteful and unique fashion of that period. Special music, among which is a quartette of well-known local singers, and a May day dance by some twenty children, will be among the features of the production.

The rights to perform Storm Beaten were obtained from Mr. A. M. Palmer, manager of the Madison Square Theatre, who presented the Home Club with the piece in recognition of certain services extended him and his company while they were doing Saints and Sinners, and Jim the Penman in this city last year.

The reserved sale commences next Saturday morning.

Notes.

HELD by the Enemy, with Gillette and Henry Miller in the cast, opens in San Francisco Decoration Day.

THE Booth-Barrett combination open their season about October 1st. E. J. Buckley will have the leading juvenile roles.

ADRIAN RANDALL's opera company, which has La Mascotte, Billie Taylor and the Bells of Corneville in its repertory, comes to us on the 5th of June.

ALL "Tag's" old friends in this city will be sorry to hear that the company organized by himself and his wife, Madame Carreno, for a South American tour, is reported stranded in Venezuela.

I UNDERSTAND that the net profits of the Booth season amount to nearly $350,000, of which Lawrence Barrett has taken for his share nearly $75,000. Acting when it pays at all, appears to me to pay extremely well.—Exchange.

MRS. GERSTER is spending the spring in Paris, visiting, shopping, driving and devoting herself to her two children, Linda and Bertha, bright little girls of 5 and 2 years, respectively. Amina in La Sonnambula is still her favorite role, and she expects ere long to resume it.

THE box-office is the best critic. Mrs. Brown Potter has closed her engagement at the Haymarket in London to an average of $300 a week. During some of her performances there were less than seventy persons all told in the house. Comment is useless. The lady's debut, at least, has been a flat failure.

MR. RICHARD MANSFIELD has scored an undoubted hit with Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde in Boston; but during his summer season in this city, commencing on the 30th inst., at the Madison Square, he confines himself entirely to light comedy. The season will open with a new farce-comedy, by Mr. A. C. Gunther, in which Mr. Mansfield will appear as the typical British heavy swell.—N. Y. Herald.

BERNHARDT opened in San Francisco, last Monday night, to an immense gathering, even at the heavy advance in prices ($3.00). Tuesday night she played Camille to an audience of smaller dimensions, the diminution being due, in the opinion of the critics, to the immorality and familiarity of the play. She plays Lady Clare there to-night. Nothing is as yet known as to whether Bernhardt fills her date here in June. Treasurer Clawson thinks there is considerable doubt about it.

MRS. D. P. BOWERS and her manager, John G. Ritchie, will leave town for California about the 15th inst. It is intended to have a tour of about ten weeks. Mrs. Bowers, owing to the Inter-State Commerce bill restrictions, carries only her wardrobe with her, and will engage the company in San Francisco, which is full of the unemployed but gentle fakir species.—Truth. This appears to be the beginning of a line of announcements which will make us yearn for the return of the good old days of stock companies.

Renews Her Youth.

Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Clay Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: "I am now 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years; could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and lameness, and am able to do all my own housework. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth, and removed completely all disease and pain.
